Mills' Bill.

The Times-Herald does not favor the Mills bill, because putting wool on the free list and yet keeping out manufactured woolen goods by a tariff, will not give the relief desired by the people. The manufacturer can go all over the world and get cheap wool. He can put the price up as he desires because the competition against him is killed off by the tariff on foreign made wools. The truth is that this feature of the bill puts the American sheep growers in competition with the world and benefits only the manufacturer. While the Times-Herald disapproves of the bill, it does not see that there is any cause to vilify and abuse Mills. He is catching it from a lot of Texas last summer prohibit on organs, who are anxious to quarrel with him. Mills is the chairman of the committee. But there are other members on it. The bill is the joint work of the members. Mills reports the result of their work. The Times-Herald has every reason to believe that if he had any assurance that his suggestions would meet with the approval of congress he would have not only put wool but woolsens on the free list. The bill was prepared to pass. The concessions in it are made to an element in congress that has the strength to demand that one part of the wool, to be taxed for the benefit of others. There has been a reduction of the tariff on woolsens provided for in this bill. This is some good, any how, and the public should be thankful for that much.
